- Creative Cloud is designed as a monthly membership. This helps avoid member lapses and the need to start over from a new renewal date. The timing was important to make this effective.
- The renewal date of members that paid one-time will be changed. They will be billed on the first day of the following month.
- The fee will be roughly half as much as the one-time renewal price. The amount is to be determined and will be communicated with members as we move closer to the changeover.
- The monthly subscription is designed for people who use the software on a regular basis. We don't intend for a one-time payment to be used for standalone software. That is, unless customers want to try the software out without a commitment.

The photographer community has been asking Creative Cloud members to consider changing their annual membership fee from a one-time payment to a monthly subscription for quite some time. At long last, rumors have been confirmed that starting in fall, customers will be able to switch from a one-time payment to a new monthly subscription subscription plan. Pricing will be different for different people and it's up to the individual.
